FINANCIAL SALVATION OF AUSTRIA ANNOUNCED

The League of Nations Preserves Austria's Political Independence

PARIS, Feb. 1.—The financial salvation of Austria was announced to the Council of the League of Nations today by Earl Balfour, as virtually an accomplished fact, and M. Viviani, who referred to the League as "the last resort for nations and states where problems had become insoluble," said the Council was now ready for other problems. The committee's report to the Council set forth that the needed loan of six hundred and fifty million gold crowns had been guaranteed to the amount of eighty-four per cent. by Great Britain, France, Italy and Czechoslovakia, nine per cent. was placed by Spain, Belgium and Switzerland, and Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Holland would guarantee the balance. Thus bankers would be fully guaranteed for any loans they made to Austria to the total fixed by the committee. Chancellor Seipel of Austria, thanking the Council for coming to the rescue of his country, said, "enables Austria to preserve its political independence," which was taken as an allusion to the declarations made prior to the League's intervention that if Austria's finances were not restored she would fall into the arms of Germany.

Tale of Heroic Rescue at Sea

Steamer Empress of Scotland Arrives at New York With Crew of Clintonia.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The tale of an heroic rescue at sea and of a desperate battle with the elements to keep a sinking vessel afloat until help arrived, was told to-day when the steamship Empress of Scotland arrived with Capt. Aaron Kearley and his crew of five of the tiny schooner Clintonia, of Lunenburg, N.S. The rescue was effected Friday.

It was an epic of courage on the part of the sturdy Newfoundlanders and of the coolness and heroism of British seamanship, in which Chief Officer R. W. McMurray and Capt. Kearley of the lost schooner played the leading roles.

Totally helpless in a terrific storm, the Clintonia, bound for Halifax from Fortune Bay, Nfld., was in a sinking condition when it was sighted by the Empress. Captain James Gillies, the liner's commander, was compelled to abandon the boat in which the schooner's crew was rescued because of heavy seas.

For three days and nights he had manned the pumps, Capt. Kearley said. "We had given up hope" and were completely exhausted when we sighted the steamer. We hoisted the distress signal but even after we were sighted, did not believe that we could be saved before my ship sank. I cannot say too much for the bravery of officer McMurray and his men when they took a desperate chance in effecting our rescue.

A volunteer crew manned the lifeboat, and several oars were broken by the waves when Officer McMurray put off for the Clintonia.

"The schooner was sinking rapidly, as we rowed for it," McMurray said. "The crew was clinging to ropes and

HEARST TELLS BRITAIN NOT TO MIND TURKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Following an unexpected and novel tribute to Great Britain on the debt funding negotiations yesterday, William Randolph Hearst today assumes the role of adviser to the British Government. An editorial printed in the Hearst papers today expresses the fear that Great Britain may be drawn into war with the Turks and deplores this, declaring that Britain "should not waste her strength in disciplining the Turk, much as he may need restraint and discipline." The editorial says, "Britain owes it to the world to keep out of war on the Turkish question," and later asserts "the day will come when England's strength will be needed in defence of liberty, democracy, civilization and religion of Europe." France again is given a severe drubbing by the Hearst articles, speaking of that country's "ruthless militarism and scheming imperialism."

every wave broke over the tiny craft. The sea was so heavy that we could not go alongside, and the men were compelled to jump into the swirling waves. We had some trouble picking them up, and all were utterly exhausted and half dead from cold when we got them into the lifeboat.

"It was a ticklish task getting back to the Empress," he continued. "We finally got alongside, but it was so rough we had to abandon the lifeboat. It was badly crushed before we could all get aboard and was in splinters a few minutes later."

The Clintonia, meanwhile, had sunk. Capt. Kearley had fired it before he left to prevent it becoming a dangerous derelict.

The crew of the schooner lost everything except the clothes they wore, but were smiling and eager to get on shore when they arrived. None suffered any ill effects from the three days of exposure.

Chief officer McMurray, his brother-officers said, has played the part of the rescuer in several sea disasters and received a silver loving cup from the Mikado of Japan for having rescued the crew of a wrecked Japanese steamship in the China sea several years ago. Other officers of the liner also have been decorated for bravery, both in war and peace. First officer Donald Stewart received the Victoria Cross, Britain's great honor, for sinking a German submarine while commander of a "mystery ship."

Captain Gillies is commander of the Order of the British Empire. All of the wrecked schooner's crew are under 30 years of age and unmarried. Capt. Kearley said. They were given $400 by the passengers of the steamer. They will return to Newfoundland after filing a report of the disaster with the British Consul.

Hughes Resigns

LONDON, Feb. 1.—William Morris Hughes, Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs of Australia, has resigned, says a despatch to the Central News from Sydney.

A Fatal Explosion

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 1.—An explosion of gas in the purifying plant of the Springfield Gas Light Company, wrecking one section of that structure today, spread damage through the business section. Three were killed and fifty injured while buildings within a radius of two miles rocked. Windows on all sides were shattered and the city proper tonight presented the appearance of a place bombarded, with some of the finest structures in partial ruins. The known dead are: Henry W. Edgner, Stanley M. Travinski, Frank Coleman.

C. N. R. at Montreal

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—It was officially announced tonight that the headquarters of the Canadian National Railway would be removed to Montreal.

RUSSIA REFUSES TO SIGN N. EAST TREATY

Wants Straits Quest on Re-opened

LAUSANNE, Feb. 1.—Although such action had been expected, the Bolshevik Russians' refusal today to sign the Near East peace treaty setting forth the conditions for the opening of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus and the demilitarization of the Straits zones, caused depression in Near East conference circles. M. Tchitcherine urged that the whole question with regard to the Straits be reopened. By doing this, the Bolshevik Foreign Minister declared, the Allies would repair their faults of seeking to impose upon Russia a treaty which Russia had not had suitable opportunity to discuss. The request was refused by the Allies. The Turks also seized the opportunity to raise objections. Ismet Pasha complained that the Straits convention left Constantinople practically defenseless since the entire Straits region would be demilitarized.

Suggests Patrol and Banks For Weather Forecast

The suggestion of Forecaster Edward H. Brown, of the weather bureau that there should be established a government patrol of the north Atlantic steamship lines, similar to the Grand Banks ice patrol, merits the hearty approval and backing of mariners, says the Boston Post. The storms along these lanes this winter have been the worst for years. Their severity is attested by battered steamships creeping into port.

Most of these storms are oceanbred and are beyond the zone of weather bureau observations. The proposed patrol would serve as floating weather stations. With the radio we can be as accurately informed of midocean conditions. Such an ocean storm-warning patrol as is here suggested would not only be the great value for shipping, protection but of great help to all the weather bureau stations on shore.

FRENCH POWERLESS IN RUHR WITHOUT GERMANS

Food Situation is the Greatest Argument

DUSSELDORF, Feb. 1.—Honors are due the French had never prevented even on the twenty-second day of the gigantic economic battle which is being waged between the French and Germans. Sober second thought is increasing and a scarcity of food and growing unemployment today caused a body of German workers to make their first appeal to the French for assistance since the troops entered Ruhr. Six thousand paper mill workers, threatened with closure of the Dusseldorf plants owing to lack of coal, sent a delegation to General Dequetté requesting the French to supply the fuel necessary for the continuance of the work. General Dequetté answered that the German railwaymen were responsible for the plight of the working people by their failure to transport coal into Dusseldorf.

WHAT BURIN THINKS ABOUT IT

The Cause of Big Debts

Editor Evening Advocate,
St. John's.

Dear Sir,—It is indeed amusing to read the Telegram's doings of the Opposition in which the trio, Sir Michael Cashin, Sir John Crosbie and A. B. Morne take the more prominent parts as saviours of Newfoundland. The country has come to a hopeless state truly when such a triplet set out as her champions, poor for Nfld. and worse for themselves. They already have a political record which cannot boast of many bright stars. Such political characters are too well known to stir a motion in one's breast or to give hope for a bright future. Can the leopard change his spots? No, but,

When the Devil was sick,
The Devil a saint would be;
When the Devil was well,
The Devil a saint was he.
Cashin and Morne, out of the country's chest and affairs, claim to be genuine patriots, but alas, as too well known from past experience when they had the reins of power, the sole ambition was self and self aggrandisement.

Who is Cashin to spout about Government extravagance or economical conditions? What is his reputation as an economist and since when has he attained it?

It is not the expenditures of the present Government, Mr. Editor, which has heaped the taxes upon the backs of the fishermen and labouring classes of this country, but the insane railway policy of Sir Edward Morris since 1912 and incidentally that of Sir Michael Cashin, who, as Minister of Finance, should know more than any other members the enormous burdens these hobbies of Morris were placing upon the shoulders of our people, and I have yet to hear or read when Sir Michael once gave a sign of warning to his colleagues or the public against such fatal policy. Certainly never any protest was published as coming from this man against that railway policy. What, just what, did that Fortune Bay branch (never completed) cost this country, Sir Michael? Ah, what a waste of material, nay a disgrace to any administration, a monument to the incapacity and inefficiency of any Finance Minister who is unfortunate enough to have such a useless piece of road charged up to his department. They growled and yined about the Badger and Bonne Bay roads, good Heavens, they are Jacob's ladders compared with the Fortune Bay branch railroad, for that leads to nowhere and is fifteen miles from anywhere, therefore good neither to man nor beast, and this is but one of Sir Michael's stars in his crown as Minister of Finance and Customs. Yet he leads the van in denouncing the Government of today and shakes his head at the Humber project. Methinks Sir Michael is more than ready to see the Humber project through.

Some people who ought to reason better, wag their heads and give vent to pessimistic yells and conclude the Humber is a failure before it is even begun, but whatever the issue, the Squires Government is the first to attempt to utilize the energy of this splendid Humber River and Valley and that the people appreciate the action can be well realized by the interest exhibited and the enquiry for a chance to help convert its great possibilities into energy and material for the good of man and the welfare of our country.

Sir Michael might as well try and attain a kingship over some of the defunct kingdoms of Europe as to hope for a return to power, for he had his chance to show his ability as a statesman but failed and failed utterly. What a splendid opportunity Cashin and his government had while the war was being waged to establish Newfoundland fish in the markets and how indifferently they let the opportunity slip without making an effort to protect the interest of the fishermen or the country in general. As I shall have something further to say on this fish matter at a later date, Mr. Editor, I shall now close.

Yours truly,
OBSERVER

Nfld. has Turned Corner

Premier Squires Is Optimistic Regarding Recent Developments.

MONTREAL, January 28.—"I am quite satisfied that Newfoundland has turned the corner and that the development which is now taking place, and in prospect, will do a great deal to supplement the fishing industry and provide greater employment." The speaker was Sir Richard Squires, Premier of Newfoundland, who reached Montreal to-day. The mission of Sir Richard is primarily to meet officials of the British Empire Steel Corporation and discuss with them conditions regarding the ore works at Bell Island which have been closed and the staff disbanded. The Premier stated that he had not made statements attributed to him by the effect that he was to issue an ultimatum to the Corporation. "I have come to Montreal to discuss the affair and to see what can be done for the men affected."

Sir Richard explained that some 2,300 men had been employed on the works at Bell Island. "Contemporaneously with the French occupation of Ruhr district the mines were closed down without any notice to the Government of Newfoundland or to the men. These men, who come from the towns and settlements about Conception Bay, have been employed on the work for several years. They have not been full time men, consequently they have no resources and

Won by Devotion OR The Rightful Heir

CHAPTER XIV.

A Morning At Shaddeek Light.

"You have no more to say than that?"

"Not that I know of. I am very sorry. I am not aware that there is anything more to be said."

Miss Lightwood turned from him to the others, as if saying: "Yop hear! He adds to the atrocity of his conduct cold-blooded indifference. And I am a poor little, unprotected creature, unable to help myself."

"You must be aware, sir," said Mr. Charlton, coming to the rescue, his voice harsh with irritating pain, "that this is an abominable affair—that people will talk—that it's an out-rageous affair—that I wouldn't have had it happen for a thousand pounds—that that in short, sir you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

He struck his stick angrily on the ground, feeling that there was more stumbling in his eloquence than was needful, and thinking how little like the prisoner at the bar his boy looked, standing erect there, his head held well up, his dark face a little pale, his frank honest, fearless eyes meeting theirs unflinchingly. For Dick; a very craven in his secret soul before his accusing angels, had a dogged instinct that he meant to die game, outwardly at least.

"Vera Martineque is blighted for life," said Mrs. Charlton, opening her sealed lips, and speaking in a deep, strong, slow, rasping ominous monotone.

"Madam!" said Dick French savagely, swinging round, his face flushing red.

"Blighted for life!" repeated Mrs. Charlton, waving him contemptuously down—"irretrievably blighted! She must live under a cloud all the rest of her days. It would have been better for her if you had turned her out in the storm to perish than have kept her here. Last night will be fatal forever to the reputation of this most unhappy young girl."

She waved her hand again; her tone was deep and Sissonlike; it froze the very marrow of this hapless young man's bones. Her gesture was tragic—indeed, she looked uncommonly like the tragic muse altogether, grown elderly and stout. Her stony stare was a blood-freezing thing to meet. Her words went thru him one by one like bullets. Dora stood pallid, mournful, despairing—life evidently held nothing more for her.

Mr. Charlton was near her, gloomy silent, frowning. He and Dot were the gentlemen of the jury. Mrs. Charlton was the judge. The black cap was ready; he had been tried by his peers and found guilty. If he had any thing to say why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced, now was the time! It was the supreme hour of his life. And he stood, tall, square-shouldered, upright, looking from one to the other, the wretched prisoner in the dock, reading no hope of mercy in either Rhadamanthus face. "Look here!" he burst out at last, "this is all confounded rubbish, you know! Blighted! Under a cloud! Sent adrift to perish! By George, you use forcible English, Mrs. Charlton! I tell you, governor, I tell you, Miss Lightwood, I tell you, madam, I am not to blame. It was simply an impossible thing for Vera to go home last night. As to sending her out to perish, that is all bosh, of course."

"I have no more to say," said Mrs. Charlton, folding her hands, and turning austere away. "It is no business of mine. My daughter knows nothing of it, and shall not. It is a very delicate and disagreeable subject. I wash my hands of the whole matter. If the young person herself is satisfied, with a short, flimsy laugh, 'we may be, I think.'"

"She is such a child—such a child," sobbed Dora, covering her face with her hands, "she does not know. Oh, why did we ever come!"

Dick put his hands to his head, feeling that his senses were reeling. What had he done—what was he to do? Was it really such a tremendous affair as they were trying to make out, or was all this a new version of "Much Ado About Nothing"? He was not versed in the nicer gradations, the subtler shades of feminine propriety, as rigidly required by Mrs. Grundy—he only knew that he wished an earthquake would split Shaddeek Light in two and swallow him bodily. It would be less terrific than Dora's sobs, or Mrs. Charlton's death stare.

"What do you want me to do?" he demanded, turning at bay upon his tormentors at last.

"I?" She laughed another short, rasping laugh. "Nothing whatever. It is nothing to me. Vera Martinez's disgrace does not touch—"

"Disgrace!" cried Richard French, with sudden fierceness, facing her. "There is no other word for it that I know of—no other the world will call it by."

"The world be—"

"No!" said Mrs. Charlton, lifting her arm, "that I will not endure. Swearing or passion never mended a shattered reputation yet. I permit no man to blaspheme in my presence."

"You mean to say—"

"I mean to say that I have no more to say. You are neither so ignorant nor so innocent as you pretend. You are a man of the world, Captain French, and do not need me to tell you what construction the world—when it knows it—will put upon Miss Vera's—ahem—eccentricity of last night. It is a very painful and embarrassing subject—I really must decline to discuss it now or at any other time."

"But, by Heaven, it shall be discussed!"

sed!" exclaimed Captain French, fairly enraged. "You come here and blacken that child's character, and then tell me you will not discuss the subject."

"I blacken her character! You forget yourself, Captain French! Mr. Charlton, I must insist upon going. I never permit myself to be insulted twice."

"I beg your pardon!" Dick said hastily, and with a sudden total change of tone "I had no right to lose my temper. If you and Miss Lightwood, governor, will leave us for a few minutes I would like to—to—"

he was at a deadlock, and the sentence was not finished. Dora's tears upset him beyond every thing, and if there was any grain of truth in all this rhodomontade he would like to get at it. Vera to suffer through him! Why, he would not have a hair of the dear little thing's head hurt for a universe.

They obeyed—Dora, indeed, wiped her eyes, and departed with alacrity. He placed a chair for his marble guest and took another.

"Sit down," he said briefly; "let us get at the head and front of my offending, if we can. In all innocence—in all inability to help myself, it seems I have blundered. You tell me I did wrong in keeping the little one last night. To do otherwise was simply impossible, but we will let that go. Keep her I did. By so doing you say I have blighted her good name for life. Now, there are but two sorts of evil, I take it, the curable and the incurable. To which does this belong?"

"To the curable, decidedly," replied Mrs. Charlton promptly. She saw she was torturing her victim, and took a malignant delight in his writhing. She felt as a cold-blooded naturalist might who had a rare and precious beetle impaled on a pin.

"That is well. Now what am I to do?"

"Does the 'what am I to do' not present itself suggested, Capt. French? In my day when a young man seriously compromised a young woman, there was but one honorable alternative—to marry her!"

She brought out the word with vicious relish. She had not the faintest, slightest, most shadowy thought that he would entertain the idea or she would never have uttered it. Had he not been but just rejected by her daughter—did he not look upon Vera as a little girl, as in point of fact she was? "Pure cussedness" had more to do with the spiteful suggestion than any thought of the possibility of its being acted upon.

He sat quite still, looking at her—his hands deep in his pockets, after his usual abstracted fashion, profound gravity on his face.

"This is the one alternative?" he asked.

"The one alternative," she answered, "and in this case out of the question."

"Why out of the question?"

"Why!" in imitated surprise. "Why? Because she is too young; because she is a great, grown-up baby; because you don't care a pin about her; because you are going away; because—oh, this is nonsense and a waste of time, and I really must go!"

He made no attempt to detain her. He rose, opened the door politely, and escorted her to the boat. In it was seated Vera, her little straw hat tilted over the nose, half asleep in the sun.

On the rocks were seated Mr. Charlton and Dora, in deep conversation—Dora still looking stricken and mournful, but resigned. Vera started up at sight of him. They were making a great fuss about nothing, she thought, and badgering Captain Dick for what was no fault of his, with his hurt shoulder and everything.

"Governor," he said, very quietly, "you will be at home for the rest of the day, I suppose? Some time this afternoon I shall go ashore and have a talk with you. Ladies, good morning."

He took off his hat ceremoniously to dame and demoiselle; to Vera he gave a parting smile. That and the fact that he was coming later on, sent her home happy. No one scolded her, no one asked her questions, the subject was tacitly dropped. The worst was over; Captain Dick had been honorably discharged on her evidence alone, and she lifted up her voice and sang, half in gladness, half in mischiefous defiance of grim Mrs. Charlton:

"A fair good morn to thee, love, A fair good morn to thee, And pleasant be thy path, love, Though it end not with me."

Her high, sweet singing came back on the morning, wind to Richard French where he stood, and a smile broke up the dark gravity of his thoughtful face:

"No vows were ever plighted— We'd no farewell to say, Gay were we when we met first, We parted just as gay."

"A fair good morn to thee, love, A fair good morn to thee, I have no parting signs to give, So take my parting smile!"

At all times it came as naturally, as unconsciously, almost as frequently to Vera to carol as to breathe. The last words floated back to him, as the little turned into the little cove and disappeared.

BISHOP MOWLL'S MISSION AT ST. THOMAS'S

Never in the history of St. Thomas's Church, was there such a warm welcome given to any man as has been extended to His Lordship Bishop Mowll; and never such a gathering seen in the "Old Garrison Church" as that which assembled last night, for the Church was filled beyond its seating capacity, while many went away unable to obtain admission.

The Bishop took for his text the 37th and 38th verses of the 8th chapter of St. Luke's Gospel "The whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about besought him to depart from them; . . . but the man out of whom the devils were departed besought him that he might (remain) with him." In this chapter, from the 26th to the 38th verse, we find three groups of people; firstly, there was the man possessed of devils; secondly, the law-breakers, — they were law-breakers because they kept pigs which was against the law of that time; thirdly, there was the group of people who tried to do good but failed; i.e., they bound the madman "with chains and fetters" but he broke them. Jesus appeared in the midst of them. He had made the double journey across the Lake of Galilee for one person; and when he arrived, all was changed for that individual. The devils, whose number was legion, went out of him, and the love of Jesus filled his heart, and he besought Him to remain. The law-breakers, however, thought a lot about their wealth, they thought more of their swine than of the Saviour, so they besought him to depart.

Just as Christ appeared in Gadara 1900 years ago, so He now appears here in our midst, for "where two or three are gathered together in My name, there am I in the midst of them." No doubt all the groups were represented in the congregation. People who, like the madman, had never felt the presence of Jesus because their evil spirits (evil desires) had controlled their living. Other who, like the second group, loved wealth or who were so much engaged in pleasure making and pleasure seeking, that they had never opened their hearts to the deep and lasting pleasure, and the rich soothing influence of the power of Jesus. Then, again, there were those who belonged to the third group, those who had tried and failed. That is why they have tried to live good lives, they have tried to blind that evil influence, and have failed, because they have not sought through prayer that power which alone can make them succeed, in their self-sufficiency they have perhaps fought against evil influences. The Bishop told a story of a mother and her son who were in danger. The son endeavoured to save her, but the struggle was so great that he was obliged to let go his hold. Later, as he stood by her grave, he cried: "Mother I tried to save you, but I would not let me." What a terrible thought, to think that Jesus may have to say to us "I tried to save you, but you would not let me." At the end of the Sermon, while the staves were distributed Resolution Cards (a pledge and memorial of the Bishop's Mission), the Rector sang a song "Jesus Saviour pilot me," and "Love that wilt not let me go."

The Bishop concluded the service with an all too short "intimate" after which he pronounced the blessing.

It is doubtful whether Bishop Mowll has ever addressed a more appreciative audience, and one feels that is a great privilege to have the opportunity of listening to a man who is so forceful a speaker, a manner of command, an emotionalism, commanding the earnest attention of a vast congregation.

After the service the Bishop addressed the members of St. Andrew's Brotherhood in their Chapel in the basement of the Church. He expressed his pleasure that the Brotherhood had invited him to speak to them, and he himself a member of the Chapter, a fact which may justly give every member pleasure to recall. The members of the Brotherhood were all introduced to the Bishop who received them with a warm greeting and a hand-shake.

Women's Franchise League Holds Enthusiastic Meeting

A meeting of the Women's Franchise League was held in the C. C. C. Hall last evening and was attended by a large number of supporters of the movement who are seeking to secure voting rights for the women of Newfoundland. The chair was occupied by Mrs. W. G. Gosling, who, in her opening remarks, outlined the aims and ideals of the Women's Franchise League of Newfoundland, of which she is President. She gave a description of the legal disabilities of women and the ways in which women would benefit themselves and others by being enfranchised. Mrs. Gosling's remarks were received with warm applause.

Mrs. Hutton followed and delivered an excellent address. Mrs. Hutton referred to the world wide strength of the suffragist movement and spoke of what the vote represented to all persons. As with the men, so it was with the women. The women needed the vote to protect their interests and their homes. It is not enough to prepare children for the world, women must prepare the world for the children. All women need the ballot, but particularly so does the woman working for a living. Because she is a woman is no reason why she should get a smaller salary than a man doing the same work. These affairs cannot be righted unless and until women get the vote. For centuries men have made laws to suit themselves and women did not get a look in. The only hope for the future lies in co-operation. Women do not want to oust men from their positions, they only want fair play. In all other English colonies women can vote, but here in Newfoundland women are classed with idiots and criminals. Mrs. Hutton urged the meeting to take an active part in the campaign and to support the movement.

Mrs. F. McNeill was the next speaker. For a considerable time Mrs. McNeill held the attention of the gathering while she dealt with the movement. Since the last meeting, Mrs. McNeill said, the League had become affiliated with the International Suffrage Alliance. Without the political pull of the vote the women would never have had their own representatives at the League of Nations. In a splendid address she dealt with education, maternity and Child Welfare movements, as the concern of not one individual but everyone. Instead of trying to "get back" as man is trying to do, all should strive together to "get on." If woman could do her share in war she might be trusted in times of peace. In China the women have formed a league with an extensive programme asking for equal rights of franchise. Here in Newfoundland people have been dreaming of a reformatory. Almost every grand jury has drawn attention to the crying need of such an institution and if women had the vote we could have had it long ago. It is useless to think of tag days for the support of charities, etc., which involve much hardship for our girls and women who, in many cases, are made subjects of humiliating remarks for holding up the public on the streets. Armed with the vote, women could demand Government funds for necessary objects and would not be denied. It is said that the vote would make women forget their duty as mothers. The late Queen Victoria proved the fallacy of that statement. Although every day she was busy with cares of Government this woman was a model mother. Public life does not harden women. It broadens the sympathies and develops their character. With telling effect Mrs. McNeill portrayed the life of women as it would be with her rights realised. The applause which marked the close of Mrs. McNeill's remarks were evidence of the support of the meeting. During the evening a concert programme was given as follows:

PROGRAMME.
Horn Solo—Mr. Bulley.
Song—Miss Crocker.
Dance—Miss Campbell.
Song—Miss Krentalin.
Recitation—Miss Fraser.
Song—Mr. Hutton.
Song—Mr. Trapnell.
Tea was served after the concert, and the meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem.

STILL SLUMPING
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—German marks continued their course toward the vanishing point in today's foreign exchange market, establishing another new low record at 55-100ths of a cent a hundred, or 15.151 to the dollar.

At the normal, or pre-war rate of exchange, which was 23.8 cents each, 18,151 marks would have been worth $4,327.08.

OBITUARY

FRANK S. CULL

Dear Mr. Editor:

Will you please afford space in your widely spread paper to record the sad passing of one, in the person of Frank Smart Cull of this place. Bro. Frank was just in the bloom of youth, only twenty-three. We look upon it as a warning to remind us that in the midst of life we are in death, and to make our calling and election sure for eternity. Our late brother was healthy and robust up until about two months ago, when the poor fellow was taken with some internal disease. Many physicians were tried, but to no avail. Within three weeks of his death he went to the General Hospital, where the kind staff of that institution did all possible for him, both doctors and nurses. But everything failed to relieve him of his trouble. The Angel of Death claimed him as his own on January the 4th, while his grief-stricken father, Bro. Charles Cull, who sat by his side, heard him in his last parting moments repeat the first verse of hymn No. 285 in the C. of E. Hymn Book: "They way, not mine, O Lord, However dark it be, Lead me by Thine own hand, Choose out the path for me. His remains were casketed and brought on here Saturday, Jan. 6th, and on Monday, the 8th, when at 1:30 p.m. the Brethren of the L. O. A. of which the deceased was a member, left their hall for his brother's house, where Bro. Pastmaster Fry, Thos. Cull, lay-reader of the C. of E., ably and reverently conducted the service, after which the Loyal Orange Brethren sang the good old hymn: "O God our help in ages past," when a very large number of mourners and friends, with some 120 L. O. Brethren wended their way to the C. of E., where the Rev. W. K. Pitcher officiated, after which we proceeded to the C. of E. cemetery, where we laid the brother to rest, to await the Resurrection morn. After the burial service the Brethren paid their last respects in joining hands and singing with the Pastor, "On the Resurrection morning." The deceased was the son of Mr. Charles and Dinah Cull, and leaves to mourn father, mother, three brothers, five two step-brothers, one step-sister, one step-brother in St. John, N.B., and one sister and one step-brother in Boston, and a large circle of relatives and friends. Frank Smart Cull was one of our heroes who enlisted in the Army for His Majesty's Service to do his bit for King and Country and after a while training in St. John's he went overseas, but before the call came to him from the battlefield the hand of Providence closed the armistice to be signed and he was spared. As the sad event of the passing of their dear boy from time into eternity, just as the flower was blossoming, has caused a great shock to the hearts of the grief-stricken parents and sisters and brothers, and I feel sure that this whole community goes out in sympathy to the grief-stricken ones in their trial and anguish.

It is hard to break the tender cord, Where love has bound the heart, 'Tis hard, so hard to speak the words, "We must forever part. Yet again we hope to meet thee, When the day of life is fled, And in Heaven we hope to greet thee, Where no farewell tears are shed. If it is not too much to ask, Mr. Editor, I would also like to convey thanks on behalf of Prince Edward Lodge, L. O. L. to the different lodges, namely, Star of the East, Cabot, Ulster, Island Home, and Burin Point, for the way in which they rallied to our help while paying our last respects to Bro. Frank. It shows a great zeal for God's work.

HOME REMEDY OF DR. PINKHAM
Almost every man and woman in America can remember the home-recipes of our mothers and grand-mothers for the treatment of diseases, and they were wonderfully dependable too. Every fall there were stored away in the attic thoroughwort, penny royal, catnip, sage, wormwood, rue, etc., for treating life of the family during the winter months that followed. In 1873, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was first prepared from one of those botanic recipes, and the demand for it has increased to such an extent that hundreds of tons of roots and herbs are now used annually in its preparation. It has recently been proved that 98 out of every 100 women who try it have been benefited by its use, which is a marvelous record for any medicine to hold.

HOW THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS WORKS

The idea of the League of Nations was born hundreds of years ago. Long before the war the peoples understood the necessity of some organization to facilitate relations between the various states, and their co-operation in matters of common interest, the most important of which is without doubt the preservation of world peace.

This need became more than ever urgent after the war. The makers of the peace treaties could not but realize this, and that is why they called into being the League of Nations.

How is the League organized? How do its departments function? What has it accomplished since its creation? I will answer these questions as briefly as possible.

1.—The Origin, Construction and Aims of the League.

The League of Nations has been created by the formal contract consisting of 26 articles, which preceded the Treaty of Peace signed at Versailles, June 28th, 1919. On the 10th of January in the following year the League began its work on the ratification of the Treaty.

The chief aim of the League is to make impossible the outbreak of wars by the establishment of lasting world peace, while its other aim is the acceleration of international co-operation in protecting the common interests of humanity at large. The League of Nations acts chiefly through three important sections, the General Secretariat, the Council and the Assembly. The General Secretariat is the conference of all member states of the League, in which each nation is represented by three delegates, they have, however, only one vote, so that the number of delegates is not important. As a rule all decisions of the session must be by unanimous vote of all members of the League represented in the meeting.

The General Session has power to deal with problems having to do with world peace which fall within the scope of the League. It convenes on fixed dates in the office of the League, or, by arrangement, in any other place; at the first session it was decided to meet automatically and regularly at least once each year on the first Monday in September.

The Council has ten members; the four Great Powers, Japan, Italy, France and Great Britain, which are constant members, and six other states, chosen at will by the Session, at present Belgium, Brazil, China, Sweden, Uruguay and Spain. Each member of the League represented in the Council has one vote and one representative. Every member of the League not represented on the Council will be invited to send a corresponding representative whenever a question is to be discussed in which it is vitally interested. The Council has power to deal with everything within the sphere of action of the League, or that touches world peace. In fact this important department may be considered as an executive of the General Session, dealing with business committed to it by the Session, and acting during the absence of the Session.

The Council has already met

Eric Drummond, with the help of three under-secretaries.

The preparations of agendas for various meetings, correspondence with members of the League, the preservation of the archives, the distribution of various documents, and propaganda of the League of Nations is attended to by the General Secretariat.

At present the following departments are in existence:—

1. Department of administrative commissions (Saar territory and the free city of Danzig) directed by a Norwegian.
2. Department of economy and finance, directed by an Englishman.
3. Department of Law, directed by a Dutchman.
4. Political department, presided

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS

"California Fig Syrup" is Child's Best Laxative

Even a sick child loves the "fruit" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little stomach is upset, tongue coated, or if your child is cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

- over by a Frenchman.
5. Disarmament, directed by an Italian.
  6. Department of Mandates, directed by a Swiss.
  7. Hygiene, directed by a Pole.
  8. Department of Travel, directed by an Italian.
  9. Bureau of Information, by a Frenchman.
  10. Bureau of Social Questions, directed by an Englishman.
  11. Department of International Offices, by a Japanese.
  12. Registry for all treaties and international agreements which will in future be endorsed by the League.

Besides these political and administrative sections there is the International Bureau of Labor, and the Standing Court of International Justice. The International Labor Bureau was established by the XIII. chapter of the Peace Contract; its functions practically independently.

2.—The Standing Court of International Law.

This was formally established last year by the General Session and the Council. To understand the importance of this fact one must remember that previous attempts have miserably failed on account of international jealousy. Two Peace Conferences at the Hague in 1899 and 1907 did indeed lead up to the establishment of a standing court of arbitration, but they were unable to carry into effect any power of supreme judgment in international disputes.

On September 14 last year there were chosen 11 judges and 4 substitutes, having consideration and respect to the balance between the large and small states. The Court will have jurisdiction in all international disputes which are submitted to it by the parties concerned. It is a pity the Court did not take to itself compulsory power; as it is, a state in dispute with another cannot compel the latter to appear before the Court.

This Standing Court, which is located at the Hague, held its first session January 30, 1922.

3.—Committees and Technical Departments.

For the fulfilment of its political duties the General Session and the Council is assisted by several committees. They have the general task of supplying advice and information to the political organizations of the League, and of preparing all kinds of reports required concerning matters within their competence.

There are two kinds of commissions, standing advisory commissions, such as that for the study of military questions on land, sea, and in the air; the Intellectual Commission, and the commissions for the control of opium, etc., temporary commissions like those of blockade, the mixed commission for disarmament, and that for changes in the constitution of the League, etc.

Further, the League has three different technical sections, which have to carry out a whole series of tasks as specified by article 22 of the League constitution: the organization for intercommunication and travel, that of economy and finance, and that of hygiene.

LESS SHIPS BUILT

BRITAIN CONSTRUCTING 770,000 TONS BELOW PRE-WAR AVERAGE.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Lloyd's Register records a decrease of 47,000 tons in the world's shipping launched in the first quarter of last year as compared with the previous quarter, but an increase of 148,000 tons in the tonnage commenced. The total tonnage being constructed in Great Britain on December 31 last was 1,120,000 or nearly 770,000 tons below the pre-war average. The tonnage being constructed abroad on the same date was 1,270,000.

BESCO. TO BUILD BIG LOT OF CARS

SYDNEY, Jan. 23.—Construction of 200 all steel gondolas and 500 wooden hoppers is to be undertaken soon by the British Empire Steel Corporation as part of a plan for the replacement of some of the coal-hauling rolling stock of the Bescor railway system, which includes the Sydney and Louisville Railway.

The steel gondolas will have a capacity of 40 tons each and will be built at Sydney and Sydney Mines. The 15-ton wooden hoppers will be constructed at the Eastern Car Works, New Glasgow.

Canned shredded pineapple makes apple butter or peach marmalade doubly delicious. A cup of pineapple added to a quart of the cooked fruit just before the sugar is added is the right proportion to make the pineapple flavor apparent, but not predominant. I have used it also in making orange marmalade and we have much enjoyed the result.—Mrs. M.

How Greenspond Men Sold Their Fish

F.P.U. Paid $1.50 More Than Others

(To the Editor)

Dear Sir,—Will you allow me space in your much esteemed paper to speak a few words about our Union store and about the fish that was taken here last summer. First of all, Mr. Editor, I must give praise to our worthy Union friend, Mr. Job Wornell, for the way he handled the fish business this past summer. For, Sir, you will always see Job Wornell on the jump when he can do any good to help out the poor man. Well, Sir, about the fifth of September, Mr. Coaker sent a schooner here to collect some of our early fish. Some of our Tory die hards laughed at him and said: what fish does that fool think he is going to get, and called the Union men fools for shipping our fish. But, Sir, we were getting $6.60 and the rise, that was more than Jesse Winsor and his gang could do for us. And what do you think, Sir? That schooner was back in Port Union in three days with six hundred and fifty quintals of fish on board, and, Sir, the man that called us foolish in September found out to his cost in November that they were the fools, and the Union men were right all the time. The reason, Sir, we gained $1.50 on our fish was we had enough trust in Coaker that he was giving us the best price. And, Mr. Editor, our Union store not only bought fish in September, but bought it all the fall, and paid the best price all the year. And, Mr. Editor, what do you think Coaker did for us? Why he bought all our half made fish, Union and non-union alike. This gave Mr. Editor, many a poor man a barrel of four which he would not have got. And then, Mr. Editor, some of the Tories will say what good has Coaker done. All we could hear, Mr. Editor, from Jesse Winsor was "Hold on to your fish for seven dollars," which no doubt they got! What fools these mortals be! Many a poor man, Mr. Editor, finds himself in a hole this fall by losing $1.50 a quintal on his fish. And, Sir, they could not afford it. I'm glad to see the way you are treating Jesse Winsor. What a man to lead the fishermen. Why, Sir, I'd sooner listen to anyone. A word to F.P.U. men, don't listen to such a man. Why, Sir, Coaker can do more for the fishermen in one day than Jesse Winsor or Ed. Wornell can do in a life time. Go ahead Coaker, Greenspond is at your back. Our Union Council is still growing stronger every meeting. A lot more I'd like to say, Mr. Editor, but will leave it until some other time. Wishing the Advocate and Mr. Coaker the best of luck. I am,

Yours truly,

FIRM AS GIBLART

many of its uncultured members. His strongest point was that if the educated had been kept out of the church by the fanatics, and the undoubtedly had, that of itself was proof the latter had the more greatly crippled it. Both leaders gave an excellent opening to the debate, and it is regrettable that a lengthier report of their arguments cannot be given. When the resolution was thrown open for general discussion, quite a number of members participated, and while perhaps there was some wandering around the question, the debate proved interesting. On the vote being taken it was found that the affirmative had won by a substantial majority. Next week, instead of the usual debate, the Institute will listen to a lecture by Mr. Hogg, the Science Master of the College.

Severe Kidney Trouble

Mrs. F. Rinehart, Campbellville, Ont., writes:

"I had trouble with my kidneys and very frequent urination. This was followed by pains which at times were very severe. The doctor said I had inflammation of the bladder and that an operation might be necessary. To this I refused, and began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. From the first few doses I felt the benefit. The pains left, urination was corrected, and I have had no recurrence of these ailments."

C. L. B. TEA

The annual tea given to the ladies of Avalon Battalion, C.I.B.C., took place last evening. The catering was done by the lady friends and about 300 sat down at 7.45. Amongst the guests present were His Lordship Bishop White, Regimental Chaplain; Rev. J. Brinton, Battalion Chaplain; Rev. Canon Jeeves, Rector of the Cathedral and several of the Brigade officers. The affair was under the entire management of the W. & N.C.O.'s Mess Committee, who are to be congratulated on the very successful arrangements. After the tea a concert programme of fifteen items was gone through. Major Williams presided as chairman in the absence of Colonel Goodridge. The programme was opened by the chairman, who welcomed His Lordship and the other guests. He also expressed the thanks of all ranks of the Brigade to the ladies for their catering, and the ladies gave three hearty cheers for the lady friends who provided the banquet. Chorus sheets were distributed and Mr. A. B. Walker provided the accompaniment, with Mr. H. B. Chafe, violin. The following contributed songs:—Capt. J. H. Snow, Lt. Job Taylor, Sgt. T. F. Pottles, and Graham Skirving and "Color Sergeant Clifford Earle. The band, under the direction of Assistant Bandmaster Vavasour, Bandmaster Morris being unavoidably absent, contributed several selections. Recitations were given by Sgt. Major Bert Colton, Lt. Colley of "C" Company. The feature of the evening was the contribution of Bandmaster Fred Martin and his special jazz band. The members were all dressed in costume and had various weird musical instruments. It was very popular with the boys. The special song, composed by the Brigade poet, Lieut. A. B. Perlin, which was a skit on all the officers from the Colonel to the Junior Lieutenant was sung by Bandmaster Fred Martin. Sgt. Major Andrews and Sgt. Major Harold Rendell, and it brought down the house. There was a dramatic sketch "Prisoner at the Bar," which was a great success. S. M. Rendell, Andrews Sgt. Feaver and President Chafe portrayed the principal parts. The Brigade hopes to see these actors producing a larger play later on. Messrs. A. B. Walker and H. B. Chafe presented a musical comedy sketch. The programme concluded with the Regimental March played by the band, and the affair terminated at 10.20 with the National Anthem.

AT THE CITY HALL

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided. Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The meeting was a short one only routine matters occupying the attention of the Board. A communication was read from the Deputy Colonial Secretary acknowledging receipt of the statements of Estimated Revenue and Expenditure for the year 1923.

C. F. Brown protested against permit being issued one Mr. Antle for erection of store adjoining his residence Prince of Wales Street. As the Council gave no permission for such erection it was ordered the Solicitor take action in the matter.

A communication was read from the Inspector General with regard to the taking of water pressures; that he considered the statements made by the Engineer were somewhat misleading and that he could not permit the Council to labor under misapprehensions thus created without some effort to dispel them. That he was prepared to do everything that is reasonable in connection with this important subject, but would not allow such assertion of rights that do not exist. The Council was of opinion that while the said tests may give the Fire Department information as to pressures in various sections of the city, still the practice of opening the hydrants in frosty weather is most dangerous and must be avoided. Work on the piling at Job's Bridge commenced last Saturday and the structure is now being put in safe condition.

The City Clerk stated Tax Bills for the current half year were now being delivered. After the 10th instant legal proceedings will be taken against all persons in arrears for City Taxes, Poll Tax, etc.

The contract for supplying water was awarded Messrs. Ayre & Sons, Ltd.

The Health Officer's report showed 8 new cases of Scarlet Fever and 1 of diphtheria in the City during the past week.

After reports of the different departmental heads were read and pay rolls and bills presented were ordered paid, the meeting adjourned.

M. C. L. I.

A rather unusual topic occupied the attention of the Methodist College Literary Institute last night; the resolution under discussion being, "Resolved: That the defection of the educated cripples the churches more than the fanaticism of the uncultured." The leaders were Rev. R. E. Fairbairn, C. Bowden and C. Newbury for the affirmative, and Rev. T. B. Darby and Wilson Clarke for the negative—the third speaker failing to turn up. In opening the discussion the Rev. Mr. Fairbairn began an excellent address by clearly defining the meaning of the resolution. Two bad things were admitted, of which one may be the worst. The term educated he interpreted as intellectualism and fanaticism as excess of zeal over knowledge. The educated, he claimed, crippled the Church by ignoring it, by failing to use it. Their defection was the more serious because in fact it was what made fanaticism possible—the trained mind being absent. The case of the peasants war in Germany was used as an illustration of the result of the absence of intelligent leadership. In ably presenting the negative side the Rev. T. B. Darby dealt with this same illustration and claimed that the excesses of the peasants, which had called forth strong condemnation from Luther, were due not so much to the lack of leadership, as to the refusal of the peasants to be guided or controlled. Their fanaticism injured the cause. Mr. Darby in defining fanaticism as "the vices of unbalanced devoutness" emphasized the point that not all the uncultured were fanatics. While the church had certainly suffered through the fanaticism it had undoubtedly benefited from

He then asked Bishop Mowll to speak and the Bishop complied, his address dealing with the subjects of Christian unity, the open Bible and Missionary effort, being received with marked approval. ## GIRLS' CLUB SALE

Yesterday afternoon the Girls' Club of Gower Street Church held a small sale of work in the lecture room of the Church. The sale was fairly well patronized and the ladies in charge were very pleased with the result, a substantial amount being raised. The afternoon teas were very appetizing and found many patrons. The proceeds go to increase the funds of the club, which is doing an excellent work.

WILL BE KEEN OCEAN RACE

The tern schooners Jan I. Donaldson, Capt. Doody, and the Evelyn, Capt. Nielson, are now ready to sail for Bahia with part cargoes of fish. The Evelyn put out yesterday afternoon but had to return owing to unfavorable winds and the two vessels will now get away together. The Evelyn has 4,000 qtls. of fish by Bowring Bros., and the Jan I. Donaldson a similar quantity shipped by Baine Johnston & Co. and Crombie & Co. Both vessels are only at half load and the race to market will develop between the two vessels will be watched with interest in shipping circles. The Evelyn, however, has the reputation of being a much faster sailer than the Duff.

TRIBUTE TO RECTOR

The Rector of St. Thomas's has during the past year contributed a series of weekly "meditations" to the "Canadian Churchman," the national Church of England weekly published in Toronto. Owing to pressure of parochial work, Mr. Earp has been unable to continue the series for another year. The Churchman has the following graceful tribute to the Rector in its issue for January 18:—

"This is the month of farewells. We had not expected that Mr. Earp's retirement from our staff of writers would follow so soon upon that of Canon Howard. He has been with us but a year, and, according to precedent, should have repeated at least once. But we have to bear in mind that he has but recently assumed the heavy responsibility of guiding the largest parish church in Newfoundland, and, at the moment, is attempting to cover with one assistant, ground his predecessor found a test for two. Widely appreciated as his thoughtful 'Meditations' have been, they must have been a severe tax upon an already crowded timetable. We offer Mr. Earp the very warm thanks of the 'Canadian Churchman' and its growing clientele, and hope he may still find time to renew the contacts so happily made during the past twelve months. He has established a fellowship between the Churches of Canada and Newfoundland that must not cease, but rather grow from more to more."

Farm Women Advised To Adopt Coue Plan

CALGARY, Jan. 22.—Urging the women of the farm to adopt Dr. Coue's plan of auto-suggestion, Hon. Irene Paribby, minister without portfolio in the Alberta Government, told delegates at the annual convention of the United Farm Women's Association that instead of becoming depressed over the conditions they should concentrate on the few streaks of blue that were beginning to show along the horizon.

She outlined the plan of the government to encourage poultry raising and the improvement of the dairy industry, stating that if the hard times had done nothing more for the farmers of Alberta it had opened their eyes at last to the necessity of the practice of mixed farming and more thrifty methods.

When poison of any kind is brought into the house for any purpose, I immediately put two common pins through the cork, opposite each other, with pin-points extending past the heads of the pins about one-eighth of an inch. Day or night the prick of the pins gives warning as soon as the bottle is touched by anyone. It proves a very effectual safeguard against very dangerous mistakes.—Mrs. B. R. P.
